Touchmark singled out as premier provider of in-home care

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Vancouver's Touchmark Home Care has been recognized as a top-rated provider of home-care services by Caring.com, a leading online resource for those seeking information as they care for aging loved ones. Touchmark Home Care was one of only seven agencies in the state of Washington to be singled out and the only one in Clark County.

Caring.com reports nearly 90 percent of people 65 and older in the U.S. want to remain in their home during their elder years. One of the biggest obstacles to staying home is maintaining independence if and when help is needed with everyday activities such as preparing meals, dressing and running errands.

The website also notes that online reviews play a big role for those seeking quality in-home care. With an estimated three million visitors every month, Caring.com is a well-considered resource. For the first time this year, the site included in-home care providers in its "Caring Stars 2017" list.

Raelene Williams, Community Education Coordinator for Touchmark Home Care, says she is grateful the service has been so helpful to families. "It's heartwarming to read what clients have said and to receive this honor from Caring.com."

She explains Touchmark is unique among providers, because it is in a position to provide a broad spectrum of assistance and information. This includes home care services as well as information about other options that may be helpful to families.

"We strive to be a vast storehouse of information to families and offer much more than may be immediately apparent," she says. "For example, along with home care, someone may need in-home physical therapy, which is something Touchmark Home Health can provide. We also have a Medicare-certified outpatient therapy clinic providing rehabilitation services and aquatic therapy to improve the health of people recovering from an injury or illness."

Caring.com highlights the best in-home care agencies in the country based on customer reviews. Some of those reviews can be viewed at: <https://www.caring.com/local/in-home-care-in-vancouver-washington/touchmark-home-care>.
