Return of baseball season brings historical presentation on the sport

BISMARCK, N.D. — As many major league baseball teams throw out the first pitch of the season, Touchmark on West Century is hosting a special presentation by local baseball historian Terry Bohn. Bohn is the author of Sunday Afternoons on the Prairie, a fascinating and unexpected history of the sport in North Dakota. For example, the state's earliest settlers enjoyed playing baseball.

Bohn will present at Touchmark on Thursday, April 6 at 7 p.m. There is no charge, and the public is welcome to attend. Because space is limited, RSVP by calling 701-323-7000. Touchmark is located at 1000 West Century Avenue in Bismarck.

About Terry Bohn

A member of the Society for American Baseball Research, Bohn researched, wrote and self-published his first book in the summer of 2016. Sunday Afternoons on the Prairie is a summary of baseball in North Dakota spanning the 1870s to about World War I. Bohn, a resident of Mandan, also works as a hospital administrator in the area.
